Community Collection: Hats

The Museum is sharing a portion of its hat collection in the Community Collection case through June. This is just a small portion as with military hats included, there are over 200 in the Museum’s collection.

Early in the 20th Century, it was well-mannered, courteous and respectful to wear a hat when in public. Around mid-century hats fell out of fashion to an extent but remained in the hearts and minds of many women. Included in the display are both men and women’s hats of different materials and styles. The display will be up through June 2019.

Museum Programming on the Move!

Hi, from Kathy Fritz at the Pipestone County Museum. I’ve been at the Museum now for about five months. Currently, I’m working on educational programming to take the Museum out to the public. Every month I give a presentation at Good Sam and Ridgeview. Topics I have covered so far have been; The Great Starvation Experiment in Minnesota, WWII Rationing and Recycling, Women in the Workforce During WWII, and WWII POWs in the Workforce in Minnesota. I choose these topics because they were not covered in my high school education. My thought was if I didn’t know about these topics, maybe others didn’t either. I found many interesting facts, which I did not know prior to my research. I’m always fascinated by the discussions we have after the presentations with the residents sharing their memories. I hope to continue finding new topics that will intrigue and hopefully inspire people to further their education about the subject. I would love to expand this program and take my presentations to classrooms and youth groups to share my research with the youth of our communities.

Take a walking tour this summer! The Pipestone County Museum is offering guided walking tours on the second Saturday of the month; June 8, July 13, and August 10. In the morning enjoy a tour of the Historic Downtown District. Learn about the National Register District and the early history of the community. In the afternoon stroll through Old Woodlawn Cemetery. Learn about WWI veterans, early pioneers, and the symbolism on the grave stones. Enjoy a day outside with your family and friends.

The morning session starts at the Pipestone County Museum at 10 am. Meet at Old Woodlawn Cemetery at 2 pm for the afternoon session. Both tours last about an hour. The fee is $3 per participant per tour and kids 12 and under are free. Make sure to wear comfortable shoes. Call the Pipestone County Museum for more information: (507) 825-2563. Visit our website at http://pipestoneminnesota.com/museum/ to learn more. We look forward to seeing you!

Don’t forget to visit the District #3 Schoolhouse at Moore Park this summer. It is open for class on Thursdays from Memorial Day to Labor Day from 1:00 to 3:00 pm. From crafts to math games to reading books, teacher Diane Hansen will be ready with fun activities for young elementary children, accompanied by an adult. Free to the public!

District #3, also known as the Farmer School, was originally located four and a half miles west of Pipestone near Highway 30. It was built around 1880 and closed its doors in the 1960s. It was moved to the Pipestone County Fairgrounds and in 1984 to its current location at Moore Park, and has been maintained by the Pipestone County Historical Society.
Dining Room Gallery Opens

The new Dining Room Gallery space is open to the public! The Dining Room was an addition to the Ferris Grand Block, built in the 1930s. Its entire west wall abuts the Museum’s (Old City Hall) east wall. In 2018 a doorway was constructed between the space with Gallery III in the Museum, adding exhibit space to the Museum’s regular tour. Over the winter work was done to spruce up the space, including repairs to a past leak on the ceiling and painting of the ceiling and the walls. Past PCHS Board President Maurice Bickford donated his expertise to find a skeleton key to lock the folding doors that connect the Dining Room with the rest of the Masonic Hall. Tours of the Lodge room will be separate from a regular Museum tour. As part of the transformation from Dining Room to Exhibit Space, three large windows will be receiving blackout roller shades, similar to the ones in Gallery II. PCHS put out the call for donations in the Winter newsletter and is need of one more patron to support the project in the amount of $250 (cost of one roller shade.) As it is, the new exhibit space is now open and features a display of objects from the Museum’s music collection, including several musical instruments, written music and other accoutrements. More displays will be added, featuring other objects currently in Museum storage.

A Peek into the Museum’s Collection

There are many cool items that can be found in the Pipestone County Museum’s collection. While some are out on display there are plenty stored away that the public can’t currently see. One such piece is a World War II American bomber jacket.

The Type A-2 leather flight jacket or bomber jacket was the standard issued and worn by Air Corps airmen in World War II. The crewmen would often give their bombers creative nicknames and have the name and a picture painted on the nose of the plane. Some names of bombers included My Achin’ Back, Leadfoot, Pistol Packin’ Mama, Pistol Pack’n Papa, and Hitler’s Headaches. The pictures were usually pin-up girls or cartoon characters and both the name and picture added a unique element to each crew’s bomber. Crew members often extended that creativity to their jackets and would get them embroidered or painted with things such as the aircraft nickname, picture, and bombs to represent the number of their missions. The jackets continue to be highly collectible and can tell a story just by looking at the artwork.

The jacket in the museum’s collection belonged to Captain Merle Dibble of Pipestone. He enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps in November of 1942, at the age of eighteen. He was a part of the 486th Bomb Group 832nd Bomb Squadron and was a pilot of a B-17. He flew with 9 other men, as the bombers would have a crew of 10 including the Pilot, Co-Pilot, Navigator, Bombardier, Engineer/Top Turret Gunner, Radio Operator/Gunner, Left Waist Gunner, and Tail Gunner. Dibble led a crew on a number of missions and flew on a total of 30 in the Ardennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in 1945.

His jacket has painted on the back a picture of the B-17 he flew, its name, Leading Lady, and a bomb for each of the 30 missions flown. After he was discharged Merle Dibble went to college and then returned to and lived in Pipestone until his death in 1998. The jacket was donated to the Museum in 2008 by his wife, Geneva Dibble, and is a great part of the World War II collection.

Projects Continue at Historic St. Paul Episcopal Church

By Chuck Draper

The stained glass window in the south wall of the hall at historic St. Paul Episcopal church now shines brightly on visitors. A major project by Historic Pipestone has transformed the space. The hall had a suspended ceiling that was in bad repair and sagging. Plaster was falling from above, weighing on tiles, even breaking several. At the same time, the dropped ceiling hid the large stained glass window high in the stone wall on the south side of the hall. When the church was completed in 1894, the window was in the west wall of the sanctuary. When the hall was added to the west side of the church in the 1920s, the window was removed and relocated in the south wall of the added hall.

But now it’s 2019. Conditions were bad and HPI members knew they had to do something. They had already completed several projects to rehabilitate the historic stone church – tuckpointing, new heating and air conditioning, sewer replacement, new eavestroughs and drainage, sidewalks, etc.

Now the group bit off its biggest single project yet. Re-doing the hall. The ceiling was in danger of falling in, plaster was crumbling, insulation was virtually non-existent, the stained glass window was hidden from the inside and could not be reached for repair. The project finally decided upon was to remove the suspended ceiling and plaster from the original ceiling and exterior walls. The original ceiling and walls were then insulated and sheetrock installed. Electricians re-did wiring. Finally, fresh paint brought everything together.

The result is a warm and welcoming space, topped by the high, original ceiling, graced by the stained glass window. New lighting is provided by hanging lamps from the now closed Catholic church in Jasper, a donation of the Jasper city council.

The next phase is repair of the window. Later this spring, the window will be removed and taken to Sue Parsley’s studio. She has examined the window and announced it repairable.

Project funding has come from various sources – a grant/loan program of the city of Pipestone, HPI past fundraising, the United Way, and generous private donations. HPI sent solicitation letters to many people and is thankful for many donations received, without which the project could not be completed. Many of the donors are active members of the Pipestone County Historical Society.

Other projects, however, remain to be completed. Some of the items are to correct basement drainage and other improvements there, new flooring and kitchen updates. Persons who wish to donate can send contributions to Box 277-HPI, Pipestone.

Memorials

Memorials are a special way of remembering a friend or loved one with your gift to PCHS. This gift is given in their memory and a letter is sent to the family of the deceased noting your gift— but never its size. Memorials of $100 or more will be registered on plaques in the Museum’s lobby.

Let us know the person to be memorialized, the amount of the memorial and who to send the memorial letter to along with their mailing address.

Do We Have Your Contact Information?

Do we have your correct contact information? This question has come up quite a lot this winter as snow, wind and ice have caused us to cancel and postpone events. For example, postponing the Annual Meeting not once but twice! The Pipestone County Museum posts changes to planned events on our facebook page: www.facebook.com (search Pipestone County Historical Society.) Often, event press releases can be found in the Pipestone County Star newspaper and also the Jasper Journal and the Edgerton Enterprise, and also on KLOH/KISD Radio.

Do we have your email address? Understanding that many of our members do not have email, we still strive to be able to contact as many as possible when plans change.

Shoot us an email at pipctymu@iw.net to make sure that we have yours!

New Digital Newsletter

We enjoy connecting with you through our quarterly newsletter The Prairie Traveler. This printed newsletter is mailed to the membership four times a year. Through this publication we are able to keep you informed on the big things that are happening at PCHS and to share some of the fun and interesting stories we come across.

But we would like to keep you even more closely informed on the interesting things we find about the history of Pipestone County, its people, places and objects, as well as what is going on with PCHS’s five historic properties.

We have sent a few of these digital missives out via your email address and plan to continue on a more regular schedule. If you did not receive the digital news via email recently that featured Geraldine Pedersen’s life-time achievement award, and news of the recent ice blizzard, Shoot us an email at pipctymu@iw.net to make sure that we have yours!
Ferris Grand Block/ Masonic Lodge

Recently PCHS hosted a Southwest Minnesota Masonic group that met at the Masonic Lodge. Forty master masons from all over Minnesota were able to enjoy the beautiful Pipestone Masonic Lodge. It was during this event that it was determined some of the plumbing had aged out and a leak was found on the first floor theater ceiling. Plumbers were called in and the problem was fixed. During an incredible rain-storm in March, the Ferris Grand Block suffered six inches of standing water in the basement, determined to be caused by a sump-pump failure, as well as a leak in the roof of the “L” which serves as the PPAC lobby. The leak materialized in the men’s restroom and repairs to the ceiling have been completed. The front façade of this dominant downtown building also continues to face some moisture issues, a clear illustration of the issues old buildings can have. But there is no replacing this beautiful historic building. PCHS takes responsibility of its stewardship seriously and will be pursuing structural grants in order to find out what steps can be taken (and in what order to take them) to ensure its longevity.

Close Bros. Land Contracts Significant to Genealogists

By Trava Olivier

Some of you may remember reading about the Close Brothers Land Contracts in earlier volumes of this newsletter. In the past we discussed the Pipestone County Historical Society’s efforts to archive the roughly 1,300 original contracts in our holdings in a manner that makes them accessible to both staff and public. Why? Because the amount of information contained in them can be a valuable tool for a family genealogist who comes through our doors and learns that their ancestor was an original settler of Pipestone County!

One of the first things these contracts provide is a legal description of the land being purchased. In 1785 the United States Government created a Public Land Survey Law to establish a method of locating and describing land. By extrapolating the legal description a person can locate the piece of land on a present-day plat map and obtain driving directions to the parcel; meaning today’s researcher can actually view the land their ancestor once treaded!

Other information on the contracts includes the date the contract was entered into, as well as dates payments on the contract were made; pinpointing a specific moment and presumably range of years one’s ancestors were living at that location. You can also find the address of the purchaser at the time of the contract’s creation providing another location to search for information on your relative prior to his/her arrival in Pipestone County.

The contracts also provide the original purchase price, amount of the down payment, and a detailed record of payment made over the life of the contract. Using that information a researcher could use an inflation calculator to translate those sums to modern day to develop a grasp of the financial commitment being established. In some cases contracts were cancelled for nonpayment which is noted and also lets a genealogist understand that something caused a deviation from the original plan their ancestor held. In still other instances, contracts were reassigned; a process where the original purchaser found another individual(s) to take over the land and its contract and fulfill payment to the Close Brothers; again showing a turn from the original plan upon entering into the contract.

The Close Bros. contracts held in the archives of the Pipestone County Museum have been digitally scanned for staff and public usage thus preserving the fragile state of the 120+ year old documents. Each contract is also in a database by the surname of the family purchasing the land. When a genealogist comes to us, we search the family name database and if we have a Close Brothers contract by that name we can quickly locate it for computer viewing and even print it for the researcher. If you have ever dabbled in genealogy then you will be able to understand the uniqueness the Close Brothers Land Contracts collection provides to the researchers who utilize the archives of the Pipestone County Historical Society.
